More Shares, More Shoes!

There's no doubt that we all love a bit of retail therapy and can easily be convinced that we can't do without another pair of shoes. However how do we fund our current lifestyle choices and build an investment strategy that takes us well onto the road to long-term wealth?

Anne Williamson, a Private Client Adviser with Ord Minnett, will present an information session that will enable investors to get started or expand their understanding of the share market. She will also break down much of the jargon and terminology that circles the industry. The presentation will cover:

- Why invest in the share market?;
- Key terminology you should be familiar with;
- The advantages of investing directly in shares;
- Strategies to develop your portfolio, whether a beginner or advanced;
- What is an IPO and how do you access them;
- The investment outlook for the balance of 2007.

There will be an opportunity to ask Anne questions after the presentation and she will be happy to discuss how you can get 'More shares, more shoes'!

About Anne

Anne Williamson is a Private Client Adviser at Ord Minnett, a leading wealth management group with a history spanning nearly 150 years. Prior to joining Ords, Anne worked in numerous trading and treasury roles with Duke Energy, Standard Chartered Bank and Toronto Dominion Australia.

In addition to the above and mingled in between, Anne has two children and has completed two degrees at the University of Queensland. It always surprised her how welcoming both students and professors could be with a 5 year old sitting in lectures and tutes!

Out of business hours, Anne enjoys tennis, dining out, travelling and has recently joined the cycle set for her method of getting to work. Two teenagers keep her constantly busy on weekends, keeping up with their sports and social commitments.

Anne also writes regularly for the Brisbane women's networking group Babes in Business and wishes to assist women to invest in the sharemarket through knowledge and education. Given that, Anne specialises in developing Wealth Strategies for established and first time investors in the equity market.
