Girls Learning About Money

SHARE, AND SHARE ALIKE

In 1995 Kerrie Brown formed an investment club called LIPS, with the aim of gaining financial independence and an understanding of how to invest in the stock market. Today the club has 8 members, with over $120, 000 of funds invested and has achieved annualised returns of 14.5%.

Kerrie – a former teacher and lecturer – also manages her families self managed super and will share her knowledge and experiences with GLAM gals at our next event, covering:

- Establishing an investment club
- Managing finances in an investment club
- Finding a broker / opening an online trading account
- Researching stocks
- Deciding when to buy when to sell
- Tax and investment clubs

About Kerrie

Kerrie Brown is a retired teacher, having worked in schools on the Gold Coast, Ipswich, Toowoomba, and Liverpool (UK) before leaving to marry, and raise three children.

Along with bringing up the children, Kerrie pursued her interest in investing, and studied some Economic subjects at University. These courses were both for interest as well as the fact that had seen several friends go through difficult divorces, and felt she needed to become more financially independent and savvy.

In the 1990's Kerrie returned to teaching, this time around Science and Technology ("the fun subjects") before retiring to focus on her families' share portfolios and Self Managed Superannuation Fund.

Kerrie is passionately interested in educating girls and women to be financially independent and impressing on them that they need this independence.

Along with LIPS, which invests only in Australian shares, she is involved in another investment club that invests in US shares, and she also acts as a mentor to another investment club.

The rewards of investing now mean that Kerrie, a keen snow skier, has had the pleasure of taking her now grown up children and their respective families each Christmas to USA or Europe for a few weeks skiing in the last 10 years.

Her aim is to ski at 70 years of age so she can qualify for the free lift ticket!
